Petrova?

What you've heard is true. Nadia Petrova won the 2006 Bausch & Lomb® Women's Tennis Tournament singles title. I know because I was there. Yes, you've read correctly—I was "ball-personing" for her while I watched my Italian home girl, Francesca Schiavone, lose.

The seventh-ranked, 23-year-old Russian professional broke Schiavone in two easy sets, leaving the winner's cup for herself.

After the deciding game, Petrova walked her way to the player's lounge. Petrova joked, "Where's my champagne and big straw?" while holding her new Waterford-Swarovski Crystal trophy.

In the meantime, Schiavone moaned and spoke to her disappointed coach about her "fall." "I was expecting a little bit more competition from myself," 25-year-old Schiavone said. She is looking forward to next year, where she will hopefully challenge Petrova at the finals again, and hopefully win her victory for her and her country.

Take That!

Supermodel Naomi Campbell was taken to jail from her Park Avenue home after allegedly assaulting her housekeeper with a cell phone on March 30th.

Housekeeper, Ana Scolavino, had apparently stolen a few items, including a pair of jeans.

Campbell's agent, Amanda Silverman, said, "We believe [the theft] is a case of retaliation, because Naomi had fired her housekeeper earlier this morning. We are confident the courts will see it the same way."

Campbell thought that Scolavino had taken several items including a pair of her jeans so she threw the cell phone, striking Scolavino in the back of her head. She needed five staples in her head to fix the open wound. If convicted, Campbell could face up to seven years in prison. This is not the first assault charge on British super-model Naomi Campbell. Two of her previous housekeepers have also accused Campbell of assaulting them with a cell phone.

Campbell's lawyers are claiming that Scolavino's wounds were self-inflicted while Scolavino's lawyers are claiming that she never took any of Campbell's possessions.

Some people think that Naomi Campbell is crazy, but if someone had stolen some of my possessions, I would seriously consider throwing something, too!
