

If I Had One Million Dollars

by Chris Connolly

The day I set off to go to the Ferrari dealership was the best day of my entire life. I wore some shaggy clothes as if I had just come off the streets. I did this to play around with the owner's mind, so that he would think that I was not worthy.

Just before I pulled up to the dealership, I realized that my gas tank was running on empty. Since I would not to be driving that car for very much longer I made the decision that I would only fill the tank a quarter of the way. As I filled up my gas tank, the smell of gasoline became so unbearable. Just before I thought that I was going to pass out, I got in my car and as soon as I tried to start the engine it just made a clank, clank, clank noise. I tried once more and it finally started.

As I pulled into the Ferrari dealership my car came to a trudging stop. I got out of my old rusted Chevrolet El Camino and slammed the door shut. The door made a loud clank as if it was about to fall out of its hinges. I took my old rabbit foot key chain off and tossed the keys into the garbage.

When I walked into the door every person in the dealership looked at me with disgust. This was because I was wearing shaggy clothes. The owner of the business came up to me and said, "Can I help you?" in a disgusted tone.

I then said, "Yeah, I'd like to buy that Enzo." He looked at me as if he had just seen a ghost.

He then said, "Sure, but do you have the money?"

"Yeah, right here." I showed him a check for 800,000 dollars. We went back to his office and discussed money. He soon pulled out the keys and handed them over; I then pulled out the check and did the same. Each and every person looked at me with astonishment as I walked out the door. Not even one person made a sound. As a matter of fact, I was waiting for a pin to drop.

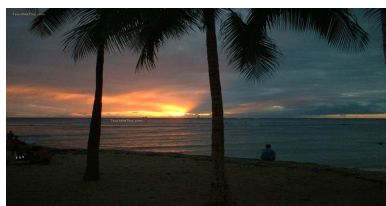

Horizon

by Ben Menaged

The Horizon is a place
Where new beginnings emerge
It's where day shakes hands with night
It's the place the suns submerge

The Horizon brings hope
It gives people the urge
To explore new things because
It's the place the suns submerge.

The Horizon looks like a piece of art
Where two opposites converge
It's where something fascinating happens
It's the place the suns submerge.

This Is Just To Say

by Stefan Paul

This is just to say
I love Jose Ole
I eat it everyday

When I'm at the store
I open freezer doors
I grab frozen foods
And I get some goods

When I get back
When I want a snack
The freezer opens
I warm it then

I wait one minute
Out come burritos
I put them on plates
I can't wait

I eat it slowly
O guacamole
My mouth burns from heat
I eat spicy meat

I eat my last bite
It's spicy delight
Umm...so good
I'd eat more if I could

This is just to say
I love Jose Ole
I'll eat it any day

